Moorabbin Timber News

You may know a couple of new faces that have become part of the Moorabbin Timber Family, they are:

Liam (Hardware), David (Timber Yard) & Tim (Timber Yard),

Also in other news, you may also notice in the coming months, Moorabbin Timber will be going through a bit of a cosmetic facelift with some parts getting a fresh coat of paint, as well as some new signage – Stay Tuned.

Travel News – Both Bill & Jenny are on Holidays, Bill is on a 5 week Holiday travelling in and around Canada, Jenny & Don are also on their way to Canada for a long deserved break, We wish them all a safe Holiday.

Bosch Blue is here at Moorabbin Timber

As you may that Hardware is making a few Internal changes, We are moving stock around to make Hardware a better place to shop, you may see in the coming weeks a few New Hardware lines being introduced.

The BIGGEST introduction being, placed on our new Power Tool Wall –the New Bosch Blue Range,

You will see a variety Drills, Angle Grinders, Jig Saws, Circular Saws and much more.

For more information on the ALL New Bosch Blue see the power tool wall in store, or visit the Bosch Web Site www.boschtools.com.au

There will be a lot of changes inside Hardware in the next couple of weeks, remember if you cannot find something ask one of our friendly Hardware Staff to direct you to the item you are looking for.

Invented for life

Timber Profile Sydney Blue Gum - Eucalyptus saligna

Sydney Blue Gum is a tall tree, found along the New South Wales coastline extending from Batemans Bay in the south to southern Queensland.

The tree gets its name from both its prevalence around the city of Sydney and the sometimes bluish appearance of its bark. The tree can grow to a height of more than 60 metres with some examples attaining heights in excess of 70 metres. The trunk is generally straight and typically free of branches on its lower half to two thirds.

The species has also been grown extensively in plantations in South Africa. The tree grows extremely rapidly in those conditions, with the resultant timber being of a much lower density than the mature Australian material.

Appearance

The timber is usually straight grained with a small percentage showing some interlocking grain. The texture is moderately coarse. The heartwood colour ranges from dark pink to reddish brown. The sapwood is typically distinctly paler in colour and is susceptible to lyctid borer attack. Gum vein and gum pockets are common.

Properties

The timber is easy to work fix and dress and has been extensively used in a variety of structural and appearance applications, including flooring, joinery, furniture, domestic and commercial construction, cladding, panelling and boat building. The heartwood is moderately durable (Class 3)

New Product Timber

This Month New Timber Product is Scyon Exterior Flooring brought to you by James Hardie; Scyon is an external structural flooring substrate for ceramic tile finishes over timber or lightweight steel floor joists. Simple and fast to install, Scyon™ Secura™ exterior flooring helps give you peace of mind against moisture damage to balconies.

Where do you use it?

As an external substrate for tiled residential balconies and as an alternative to particleboard, plywood or compressed fibre cement.

What are the key benefits?

Security. Secura exterior flooring is sealed on all sides with an advanced polymer coating that helps protect the board from moisture-related problems. A topcoat on the surface of the board provides good adhesion. The mesh reinforcement on the underside enhances the heavy-duty performance of the Scyon™ material, adding extra strength and impact resistance to deliver a suitable external residential flooring substrate.

Easy to install. At about 40kg and 2,700mm long by 600mm wide, Secura exterior flooring is about 20% lighter than compressed sheet (per square metre) and can be carried by two people, tucked under the arm and carried like a large surfboard. It's also tongue and grooved which delivers engineered joints and eliminates the need for timber trimmers under these joints.
